

Professional Technical Review Conference (PTRC)

The purpose of this teleconference is to assist each attendee in developing a plan of action that will be a guide to passing the exam. This plan of action will be relevant to each individual's technical knowledge and methodology toward problem solving. The teleconference is for all FE and PE examinees of any engineering discipline. The teleconference will consist of 3 significant test taking philosophies that will give you a significant advantage over those that do not attend the teleconference. Given that the level of difficulty varies from exam to exam it is difficult to grasp from your performance how much more or less time you should spend in preparing for the exam. The majority of the examinees will answer 50% of the questions correctly with little to no study preparation. The majority of examinees have a college degree in engineering as well as 4 years or more experience in the profession. The majority of the examinees if given 24 hours to take the exam would answer 60% to 70% of the 180 questions for FE exam and 80% to 90% of the 80 questions for PE exam correctly with little to no study preparation. The PTRC will assist you toward developing a plan of action that will guide you to answering 60% to 70% of the 180 questions for FE exam and 80% to 90% of the 80 questions for PE exam correctly within the 8 hours allotted for each exam. BEC is confident in stating all those that participate in the 2 hour teleconference and strive to implement techniques and strategies discussed should have a successful performance on the exam. Teleconferences will take place on Monday evenings for FE/EIT candidates and Thursday evenings for PE candidates every other week beginning February 13th for Spring Exams and July 30th for Fall Exams up until one week prior exam dates. After registering for the teleconference email contact@babbsengrg.com your name and the teleconference you plan to attend.
